

Professional Services for Wireless Operators

Enabling wireless location-based services

Long after the location-based services hype has died, a few operators around the world have quietly built successful location-based services offerings with sustained profitability. Why have they thrived while others have failed? And what are the keys to delivering a successful location-based network?

Leadership begins with increased revenues and profits, and carriers who know this find ways to deliver new services quickly and efficiently. But success may not be realized when introducing complex new technologies. It can create strain throughout an already over-burdened organization. So how can you do more, with less? And how can you make complexity fun? By working with a trusted wireless software expert who can help you plan, deploy, and launch new services and network capabilities that increase revenue and decrease churn.

TechnoCom Corporation makes this possible. TechnoCom is the leading enabler of wireless location services. TechnoCom has been at the forefront of location based services since their inception, more than ten years ago. TechnoCom offers a complete portfolio of services and solutions for wireless operators deploying enhanced location based data services, including:
